CLASSIC MYTHS

PROLOGUE

'Tis but for today this class of 'fifty-two is still the senior class,

And on the morrow we departest, leaving our old place for the new.

Four years have we run this race.

But memories will fade in time, and others
soon will come to take their place;

Recorded here the light mixture of the gay and serious which have been our school life.

'Tis but today the new-cut pages crackle as they turn;

But for today the gilded cover shining bright;

And for tomorrow, a volume fated to be
unused and half-forgot,

Till many summers hence, the gathered motes of years are brush'd away,

And then before our eyes return the scarst
remembered scenes and faces,

The still-echoing laughter and the sky-
aspiring dreams of youth,

A memory of friendships, long obscured
beyond the veil of years;

And if this time-woven veil canst be ripp't
aside and keep these friendships true,

The purpose of our book shall be fulfilled;
the Classic Myths of nineteen hundred fifty-two.

President's Address

by Richard P. Benoit

In behalf of the members of the Class of 1952, it is my pleasure and privilege to extend to you, our parents, our teachers, and our friends, a most sincere welcome to our Class Day Exercises.

It is with undying gratitude and the deepest appreciation that we realize this day has been made possible only through the unselfish sacrifice and interest of our parents and the untiring effort and patience of the faculty, who have succeeded in developing not only our minds but also our character. To you, our parents and our teachers, we offer any future success in payment of a debt which we shall never quite be able to repay.

The few short years we have spent at Classical High School have more than rewarded us with many treasures. We have acquired a strong foundation for whatever field we choose to follow. We have made friendships which we shall always cherish and remember. We have learned the real meaning of fellowship, fair play, and cooperation. We have taken part in activities that have been enjoyable and valuable. We have enjoyed these years, but now the time has come for us to take on more responsibilities and to meet new and more serious challenges. Before us lie many paths. Some of us will go down these paths never to meet again; others will remain together to work and to face the future. Whatever we do, and wherever we go, we shall be called upon time after time to demonstrate what we have learned so well at Classical High School.

Class History

by Elaine I. Green

The mighty old queen of high schools sighed momentarily, gathered her treasures of wisdom and hope, braced herself, and then warmly welcomed the Class of '52.

Our first assembly was scheduled for the illustrious "first Wednesday after Labor Day" in a year victorious for Truman, the New Look, and the Cleveland Indians — nineteen hundred and forty-eight. And so we arrived at sunrise on the appointed morning, only to make the shocking discovery that nobody was playing in the schoolyard. Abashed, (whatever do they do before school!) but never-the-less eager, we marched up the walk and passed through the doors.

Ascending the steps, (only because the elevator was undergoing a major operation, the escalator's paint was still wet, and the ski tow was strictly for sophomores) we met the assembly hall whereupon many of the boys ungallantly beat the girls for the back seats. Their victory was short-lived, however, when at 8:10, Mr. Fenner arrived and urged everyone around him for a few words of advice, encouragement, and a homeroom number.

With a team led by such stalwarts as Jane Storey, Marilyn Shulman, Pat Mulry, Cindy Lee, Sally Grahn, and Nancy Benjamin, the Freshman Girls' Basketball Team won the laurels of the Inter-High championship.

We took time out to organize as a class and in the resulting elections Dave Horgan was made President; Sue McTighe, Vice-president; and Neal Hurwitz, Treasurer. Our numbers had greatly increased with the arrival of recent Junior High graduates.

At all athletic contests the spirited voices of head cheerleader Pat Mulry and regulars Phyl Burke, Betsy Silun, Judy Bower, and Joan Engstrom could be heard in rousing Tiger cheers.

In our Junior year we crawled out of the cocoon and flew into the limelight of sports, clubs, and dances. Among the notables were Fred Samaha, who was the brightest spark of the football team, the girls of Field Hockey, and the members of the Mixed Chorus who sang at the Music Festival.

With Mr. Coakley and Mr. Erickson at the wheel, the new Safety course for juniors was initiated. The full benefits of this class were not realized, however, until we took the driving test and were exempt from answering any questions in the "blue book".

Since we were now the Junior Class with such marvelous affairs as a Prom to plan, we hastened to elect capable officers. Neal Hurwitz became President, with Cindy Lee, Judy Bower, and Ed Hennessey as vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively.

At the Varsity-Faculty game this year the score at the final buzzer was 19 to 4. The results were inevitable because of the threats by our "Flawless Faculty Five" to flunk any student making an intentional basket.

After the customary furlough had expired, we re-entered the familiar halls in a colorful parade of blue beanies and white bucks.

A cheerful note was introduced at this time with the revival of the air-raid and Math 6.

Our congratulations went to Dick Benoit who gained a berth on the first team in the annual All-City balloting. This honor was considered even greater in view of Classical's football record of the season.

This was our year to shout! Led by Art Bernard, Ronnie Shadbegian, and Tony Karpawich the basketball team was tied for first place through the season. Then, weakened by the loss of Art and Ronnie who graduated, the team lost to South in February and dropped to second place.

February found our ranks depleted and how we missed our recent grads! Bill Hubbell, Gene Kellogg, Ed Krochalis, and Phil Van Leeuwen began to work for a change, while Phyllis Brody, Carol Seigal, Marc Smith, and Mary Georgeson began their college training.

The Variety Show, which made a hit of the "Wailing Sahara", the annual Varsity-Faculty game, and the College Boards followed in quick succession and left us a little breathless.

Our Senior play this year was the comedy of "Junior Miss" and another success for the Green Room Club.

And then suddenly, as if we had not been prepared by Harry and the "two bucks", measuring for caps and gowns, and Senior Prom news, June was upon us.

The last chapter of this history recalls the fun of Class Night, the glamour of the Prom, and the solemnity of our Commencement.

And here it ends. Remembering the warm welcome and the years of learning, laughter, and friendships Classical has given us, how can we help getting a little sentimental as we record here these last words of the History of the Class of '52?

FINIS!!

Class Will

by Edward F. Hennessey

We, the Senior Class of 1952, being of sound mind and discerning judgment, make our last will and testament.

To Mr. Fenner, Mr. Couming, and the entire faculty, we offer our sincerest thanks for their patient and tireless guidance through these hectic four years.

To the personnel of the office and guidance department, we wish to express our appreciation of their valuable aid in helping us make our college preparations.

To Mr. Hearn, our deepest gratitude for all those lovely quizzes.

To Mr. Powers, $5.00 in payment for one autograph.

To Mr. Rice, the fond memory of Ronnie Brust and Neal Hurwitz.

To Mr. Coakley, six gray hairs, compliments of the graduating members of his driving class.

To Miss Shaughnessy, a recording of Ed Nalewajko's recitation from "Macbeth".

To Mr. Butler, a megaphone, so that his cheering at athletic events can be really appreciated.

To Mr. Brennan, the dream of a team composed entirely of Bernards and Shadbegians.

To Mr. McKinley, a pair of asbestos gloves with which to pick up those Christmas ties.

To Mr. Yablonski, a magnetic football which is attracted to wooden goalposts.

To Mr. Couming, a pair of squeaky shoes to warn all students engaged in illicit candy buying.

To the entire faculty, one case of aspirin.

As special bequests, I have been directed to leave:

To all incoming freshmen, Liz Farber and Vickie Manos leave their report cards, to be gazed at with awe.

To future female wits, Elaine Green leaves her ever-ready sense of humor.

To any girl who wishes to be versatile, Cindy Lee leaves her musical, scholastic, and athletic talents.

To an underclassman of glib tongue and long wind, Ned Redican leaves a volume of his classroom orations.

To some stylish Junior boy, George Esper leaves his pair of black suede loafers.

To an aspirant girl basketball player, Mary Kristoff leaves her prowess on the hardwood.

To all loquacious females, Arline Snider and Mary Prendergast leave their motto, "Silence is Golden".

To any boy with cold feet, Cynthia Colebrook leaves a pair of pink and blue knitted argyles, the product of many school hours of labor.

To the next Senior Class comedians, Bill Hubbell and Steve Burton leave their autobiography, "Why Teachers Leave Homerooms".

To followers of the horses, Bob Brown leaves his collection of old "Racing Forms".

To some future hoop star, Tony Karpawich leaves his basketball shoes, size 12 1/2.

To those who appreciate real art, the Junior Class Dance Committee of 1951 leave their prom pictures.

To this last will and testament of the Class of 1952, I set my hand and seal this 9th day of June, Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-two.

Signed,

Edward Francis Hennessey III

Class Testator.

Class Oration

by Neal J. Hurwitz

Successive Congresses have for years refused to yield to the tremendous pressure of various powerful groups advocating some form of compulsory military service. They have stood steadfast against the insistent urging of professional and amateur militarists alike. Even when Pres. Truman threw all the weight of his enormous influence behind U.M.T., reenforced by the tension of the times, Congress still held back.

Why has Congress held back from passing this bill? If it is important to the national defense that all American youth be impelled to take military training, why have they been so reluctant to adopt it? Congress has been quite willing to approve Selective Service and huge appropriations for military defense. Why has it refused for so long to pass Universal Military Training?

The answers are that thousands of Americans have let their representatives in Congress know that they realize what a serious blow to American democracy compulsory militarization is. Too many Americans have seen what militarism has meant to the citizens of Germany, Russia, and Japan to want it for themselves. Too many have given their sons and their money to fight the results of militarism in these countries to allow it to fasten itself on their own land. They realize that when Congress debates this legislation, it is not considering an immediate crisis in world affairs, but that this crisis is democracy itself.

The only manner in which U.M.T. was recently defeated, in spite of the continuing pressure of powerful organized groups, was by the strong public opinion opposed to U.M.T. Putting U.M.T. into effect now, actually would reduce the effectiveness of the regular army, since scores of thousands of men would have to be drawn from the army to furnish the training units. Most supporters of U.M.T., like the American Legion, know that in normal times the American people would never tolerate passage of such legislation. They exert their most strenuous efforts in a time of emergency, attempting to tie the two together.

Universal Military Training will not help to reduce casualties in a future war. It was discovered that battle casualties which were highest in front line troupes occurred about equally among battle-hardened veterans and raw replacements. While, on the contrary, ten thousand or more casualties a year could be expected from U.M.T. itself. U.M.T. would require all youth to serve and this itself would not strengthen democracy.

Universal Military Training did not prevent war and it did not prevent defeat. It was the least free states which collapsed under the strain of war — and they collapsed in the order of their degree of freedom. Only the untested Swiss and Swedish systems of peacetime conscription have been referred to as "successful" by American army spokesmen.

The failure of peacetime conscription in Europe and Asia was the failure of a system, and not just an accident. On the basis of the evidence we have, there is no reason to believe that Universal Military Training will serve America better than it served Europe.
